the goal of the volume is to shed fresh light on modern hebrew from perspectives aimed at readers interested in the domains of general linguistics typology and semitic studies starting with chapters that provide background information on the evolution and sociolinguistic setting of the language the bulk of the book is devoted to usage based studies of the morphology lexicon and syntax of current hebrew based primarily on original analyses of authentic spoken and online materials these studies reflect varied theoretical frames of reference that are largely model neutral in approach to this end the book presents a functionally motivated dynamic approach to actual usage rather than providing strictly structuralist or formal characterizations of particular linguistic systems such a perspective is particularly important in the case of a language undergoing accelerated processes of change in which the gap between prescriptive dictates of the hebrew language establishment and the actual usage of educated literate but non expert speaker writers of current hebrew is constantly on the rise this collection of essays treats many aspects of ancient jewish history and modern historiography in this area with an emphasis on the history and literature of the second temple period and especially on the writings of josephus it is dedicated to daniel r schwarz and reflects his central academic interests additional essays deal with historical and ideological aspects of classical rabbinic literature with archeological finds and with perceptions of the jews and judaism on the part of non jews in the second temple period and later marriage today might be a highly contested topic but certainly no more than it was in antiquity ancient jews like their non jewish neighbors grappled with what have become perennial issues of marriage from its idealistic definitions to its many practical forms to questions of who should or should not wed in this book michael satlow offers the first in depth synthetic study of jewish marriage in antiquity from ca 500 b c e to 614 c e placing jewish marriage in its cultural milieu satlow investigates whether there was anything essentially jewish about the institution as it was discussed and practiced moreover he considers the social and economic aspects of marriage as both a personal relationship and a religious bond and explores how the jews of antiquity negotiated the gap between marital realities and their ideals focusing on the various experiences of jews throughout the mediterranean basin and in babylonia satlow argues that different communities even rabbinic ones constructed their own jewish marriage they read their received traditions and rituals through the lens of a basic understanding of marriage that they shared with their non jewish neighbors he also maintains that jews idealized marriage in a way that responded to the ideals of their respective societies mediating between such values as honor and the far messier realities of marital life employing jewish and non jewish literary texts papyri inscriptions and material artifacts satlow paints a vibrant portrait of ancient judaism while sharpening and clarifying present discussions on modern marriage for jews and non jews alike previous research on mesopotamian flood traditions tended to focus on a few textual sources how the traditions originated and developed as a whole has not been seriously investigated by systematically examining a large body of relevant cuneiform sources of diverse genres from the early dynastic iii period ca 2600 2350 b c to the end of the first millennium b c this book observes that it is during the old babylonian period ca 2000 1600 and classical attestations of the flood traditions are found on linguistic conceptual and literary historical grounds the book argues that the flood traditions emerged relatively late in sumerian traditions it traces different evolutionary stages of the flood traditions from the emergence of the flood motif within the socio political and cultural contexts of the early isin dynasty ca 2017 1896 b c to the diverse mythological representations of the motif in literary traditions to the historicisation of the motif in chronography and finally to the interactions between various strands of the flood traditions and other mesopotamian literary traditions such as sumerian and babylonian compositions about gilgameš by uncovering the processes through which the flood traditions were constructed the book offers a valuable case study on the complex and dynamic relationship between myth making the development of literature the rise of historical consciousness and historiography and socio political circumstances in the ancient world the origins and development of the flood traditions examined in the book furthermore represent one of the best documented examples illustrating the continuities and changes in mesopotamian intellectual linguistic literary socio political and religious history over the course of two and a half millennia the pentecostal mission in palestine is a virtually unknown episode in the history of pentecostalism its story begins in 1906 at the azusa street revival from which missionaries were sent to palestine in its first thirty years the pentecostal mission in palestine gained a foothold in jerusalem and expanded its reach into jordan syria and iran it was severely tested and lost traction during the tumultuous period of the arab revolts world war ii and the partition crisis with the catastrophic war of 1948 the pentecostal missionaries fled as their arab clients were swept away in the palestinian diaspora after 1948 a valiant attempt was made to revive the mission but only with relative success although the pentecostal missionaries failed in their objective of converting jews and muslims they were eyewitnesses of the formative events of the arab israeli conflict newberg argues that the pentecostal missionaries functioned as brokers of pentecostal zionism he offers a postcolonial assessment of the pentecostal missionaries crediting them for advocating philosemitism yet bringing them up short for disregarding the civil rights of palestinian arabs espousing islamophobia and contributing to the forces working against peace in the holy land this publication is a collection of studies devoted to various aspects of the semantics and lexicography of ancient hebrew all contributions except the last two were originally delivered as papers to a symposium held in july 1994 at leiden university the symposium rounded off a three year long international network funded by the european science foundation under the leadership of prof dr j hoftijzer from whose contribution to the present volume one may gain an insight into the conception and philosophy of the research project and its history so far this volume will in addition to some earlier publications which have appeared in the zeitschrift fur althebraistik give the reader some idea of the general thinking which has assisted the authors in the formulation of their approach to the task lying before them it ought to be emphasised however that all the studies appearing in this volume ought to be of interest to any hebraist and old testament scholar for they are hardly in house publications but address some important aspects of the ancient hebrew semantics and lexicography
